Student Outside Employment. The law school strongly recommends that first-year students not undertake outside employment. Except as authorized by the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs (with the concurrence of the Director of the LL.M. Program for LL.M. students), No student shall undertake outside employment exceeding 20 hours per week in which the student is enrolled in twelve or more credit hours. Employment is not considered an excuse for poor grades or class attendance or preparation, and students whose employment is interfering with academic requirements will be required to reduce their working hours or withdraw from school until such time as they can attend with fewer hours of employment. Students on scholastic probation may not be employed outside of the law school for compensation without the permission of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs or the Associate Dean for Student Life.
