TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
COMPUTER PURCHASE WITH FINANCIAL AID

Certification Form

Texas Tech University School of Law students who qualify for financial aid may add the cost of a new computer to their existing educational budget. The cost of the computer and the use of a pre-configured software suite for educational purposes, along with insurance and maintenance fees, will be added to the financial aid budgets, up to $3,500. This increase to the financial aid package may be used only once in the student's law school career.

If the student has borrowed the maximum in federal Stafford Loans ($20,500) for the year, the additional cost of the laptop will need to be covered by a private loan.

In order to qualify for financial aid support, the laptop must be purchased after July 1, 2007 for fall 2007 admitted students. However, please note that financial aid processing and disbursement for the laptop purchase will not be available until after mid-August. Also, federal regulations prohibit single disbursements; therefore, only one-half of the total purchase price can be disbursed during the regular fall disbursement cycle. The second half of the disbursement will be made during the regular spring disbursement period. The computer must meet the following minimum specifications:
